BIG SUMS ARE BET ON RESULT OF THE GREAT AUTO RACE

Wagers Are at Varying Odds and Include Every Possible Complication—300,000 Expected to Watch Great Contest.

RACERS RISK THEIR LIVES IN FINAL TRIALS OVER COURSE

Vanderbilt, Cup Donor, Busy with Protests, Unable to Race To-Day with Whitney—Wire Fences Guard the Danger Points.

Rain or shine, there will be 300,000 or more seekers after excitement clustered about the 29.7-miles-of-course over which eighteen powerful automobiles will speed for the Vanderbilt Cup to-morrow morning. The indications are for clear weather, with showers to-night to lay the dust and spread the oil with which the course has been sprinkled and the track will be in fair condition. In any event the race will not be postponed.

All available sleeping accommodations for to-night have been engaged. Thousands of enthusiasts will sit up in country barrooms, drinking and singing. The race will be started in comparative darkness and accidents are feared in the rush of automobiles and other vehicles on the roads leading to the course, during the night. The protest of the Automobile Club of France against the Thomas car was dismissed to-day by William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., after Mr. Thomas had submitted verbal testimony and affidavits to show that no part of the car was made in France. Mr. Vanderbilt immediately called his decision to the Automobile Club of France, and the only complication in the way of the race was thus brushed aside.

Trouble Over Weighing In. Jenatry, driver of Robert Gray's Mercedes, caused a great deal of excitement at the weighing in of cars to-day. It was expected that the foreign cars would have considerable trouble in making the desired weight of 2,000 pounds, particularly as several would come in with heavy auto rights dressed in case of possible wet roads to-morrow. Jenatry's car weighed 2,300 pounds, and the early excited Belgian was frantic with indignation when informed by the committee that he must take off fifty-six pounds. "No!" he exclaimed. "The car will not go in for race. I protest once."

His red hair even assumed brighter hue, and his eyes little golden streaks up in the nose of Sam Miles. Finally the Frenchman was persuaded to take out some of his small wares with care, and it came down to the required weight. By Dietrich car was also over weight by ten pounds, and after being stripped of all novelties, including gasoline, oil and water, it was found that some of the braces which could be removed, possibly without injury to the stability of the car, were braced on to the frame. With these the car weighed 2,115 pounds. Duray, driver of the car, promised to take them off after the race and the car was allowed to start with the understanding that it must weigh in after the race at 2,000 pounds and no more. Otherwise if the car wins it will be protested. Vanderbilt Goes Over Course. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., donor of the cup and referee of the international race, with Mrs. Vanderbilt, this afternoon rode around the course to make a final inspection. Mr. Vanderbilt discovered that the representatives of the New York Hill Porters' Union had preceded him. In making out the course the Racing Committee had utilized all the telephone and telephone poles along the course on which to tack signs pointing out the way. For some reason not explained to the committee, the bill posters to-day tore the signs down. There were indications this afternoon that a second Thomas car will be in the race. Rumors that that effect started early, but this afternoon they were partly confirmed when a second Thomas car was sent to Garden City to be weighed. The Thomas representatives declined to discuss the matter. It is believed that one of the entries will be withdrawn, and that the Thomas car will take its place. A tented city developed this afternoon around the grand stand. One hundred tents were put up to accommodate the overflow from the hotels. They will house 800 persons. An illustration of the wide-spread interest in the race was the arrival to-day of a special train of five Pullman

PROBABLE WEATHER FOR AUTO CUP RACE.
The official forecast of the weather made by the Government expert in Washington is that it will be generally fair in this region to-morrow, with southeast, shifting to north-west winds.

Thousands Wagered. Betting in the big hotels in New York and at the various headquarters around the course was brisk to-day. Thousands of dollars were wagered as various drivers and their machines to do is tinker with their machines in order to have them perfect for the starting time. The arrangements for the race are as perfect as human ingenuity can make them.

DELIRIOUS NURSE FOUND ON FLOOR OF BURNING FLAT

Three Queer Blazes in Quick Succession Puzzle the Neighbors.

TOWEL OVER HER HEAD.

"Take Them Away; Don't Let Them Kill Me," She Kept Repeating.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

Efforts Made to Suppress Facts and Hints Given Out of a Celebration.

There is a lot of mystery about a series of queer fires which occurred to-day in a suite on the fourth floor of the Columbia apartment-house at No. 10 West One Hundred and First street. A neighbor who discovered the third blaze, found a young girl lying on the floor in the midst of the smoke with a towel twisted around her head, apparently helpless from terror and crying over and over:

"Take them away; Don't let them kill me." This girl was one of several nurses who occupied the apartments where the fires originated. All of them are employed at the New York Medical College and Hospital for Women. The manager of this hospital made strenuous efforts to hush up the whole story and keep it out of the newspapers and the hands of the police.

Mrs. William Guire lives on the fifth floor of the Columbia. She was coming down stairs from the roof, when, passing through the fifth floor, she smelled smoke. She opened the ball door of the flat occupied by the nurse. She could see that a bed in the front room was ablaze. As Mrs. Guire ran toward the bathroom to get water with which to extinguish the flames, she stumbled over Mrs. Rollins, one of the tenants of the flat. The girl was stretched on the floor with her face and head swathed in a thick towel, apparently struggling to regain her feet. As Mrs. Guire laid hands on her she screamed and begged for help. Her cries brought Miss Jardine, the head nurse of the hospital, Miss Keefe, a nurse, and the janitor. They aided her to extinguish the fire and carry Miss Rollins across the street to the hospital. On the way she regained her senses and began screaming that she was about to be killed. Then she became wildly hysterical.

Dr. Boyce attended Miss Rollins. He was cautioned by Miss Jardine not to let the girl say a word to any one about her experiences. The nurse of the hospital, reinforced by a Mrs. Wilson, one of the directors, did their best to keep the whole affair a secret. They insisted that nothing had happened which should be printed. Other fires had already occurred in the nurses' flat to-day. At breakfast time some one had applied a match to all the beds in the suite. These fires were promptly put out. Three hours later an effort was made to burn two of the beds, and in an hour the third fire was discovered. There is no explanation for them nor for the condition in which Miss Rollins was found. Neighbors in the building say there was a lot of skylarking at the fourth floor last night. Detectives Keenan and Horan, of the West One Hundred street station, who are at work on the case, were unable to get a statement from Miss Rollins or from the hospital people. Miss J. Dougherty, who has rooms on the fourth floor of the Columbia, along the same hall with the nurses' apartment, was found at the moment that the first alarm of fire was given. The detectives are sure, however, that the man who saw the janitor hurrying through the building in an effort to find the cause of the fire, and who heard Miss Rollins crying out, "Take them away. Don't let them kill me."

M'CARREN IS DEFIED BY HEARST AND THREATENS TO COME OUT FOR HUGHES; MURPHY ALSO FEARS A LOCAL FIGHT

HUGHES ADVISES COLUMBIA MEN ON CAMPAIGN

Appeal for Help to Good Citizens, Not to Partisans, He Says.

Charles F. Hughes addressed the students of Columbia University this afternoon at Earl Hall and aroused his hearers to intense enthusiasm. As a result of his visit a big club of students was formed to advance his candidacy, and work will be begun next week. Young men with oratorical gifts will volunteer their services as campaigners throughout the city. The hall was packed when Mr. Hughes arrived. Barring College girls, he squeezed their way in, and their shrill voices joined in the clamor that greeted the candidate. Mr. Hughes was accompanied by Mr. Linn Bruce, the candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, and other speakers, all of whom delivered short addresses. Mr. Hughes was greeted with the college yell when he stepped out to deliver his address. Then the Barnard girls gave him a Chautauque salute. It was the first big audience he has addressed in his campaign, but he betrayed not the slightest nervousness. He advised his hearers that this campaign is one that calls for judgment and thought rather than for red fire and oratory. The emergency, he said, calls for the laying aside of party and the handing of good citizens together in the interests of the State. "Not in forty years," declared Mr. Hughes, "has there been an emergency calling for such united action on the part of the educated men of this Commonwealth. My opponent's campaign is a systematic campaign of delinquency. We must not call for help to Republicans or Democrats or Independents, but to the good citizenship of the community. We are not the more virtuous in fact, the poor, without opportunity, have more of the elementary virtues than any other class. In going out to rally to the people for the Republican party do not go to the aid of men, but meet them on the common ground of good citizenship."

BLOODHOUNDS TRAIL CHILD'S ASSAILANT.

(Special to The Evening World.) STUPEFIED, Mr. White, walking in a lot near his home, at Myrtle, Va., to-day, ten-year-old Louise Landford was attacked by Mark Underwood, a bloodhound. The animal, which was on a leash, was attracted to the child, who hastened to the scene. Underwood ran and did not stop when the operator supplied the contents of the weapon in his direction. The rescuer arrived just in time to save the child. Bloodhounds were wired for and now are on the trail of the negro. If he is caught a lynching is likely.

SAY HE "SICKED" DOG ON BOY.

Charged with "sicking" two Great Danes on a boy, Joseph Guyhen, of No. 136 West Twenty-sixth street, was to-day put under $300 bail for three months in Jefferson Market Court. Witnesses told Magistrate Wahle that the dogs were being exercised by Guyhen when they attacked Jimmie Irvine, sixteen years old, at his boothblack stand on the corner of Seventh avenue and Twenty-ninth street.

Instead of calling off the dogs, witnesses said Guyhen urged them on. A mob was roughly handling Guyhen when Policeman Bracken arrested him and sent the injured boy to the New York Hospital.

DROPPED DEAD IN A CAFE.

Daniel D. Nelson, seventy-three years old, of No. 420 Lenox avenue, this afternoon dropped dead in a cafe at 48 New street.

BY BOZEMAN BULGER.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 5.—But for the fact that Griffith would like to clinch second place in the American League race to-day's game would have been a joke. The New York manager begged his men not to play listlessly because interest had ended, but to go in and hold second place by winning to-day, and to-morrow they could do as they pleased. With tailenders in both leagues Boston is not overenthusiastic on baseball, and the crowd to-day was hardly sufficient to pay the New York club's hotel bill. The Highlanders have evidently received some word about the post-season series with the Giants, and it is now absolutely off their minds. They do not even discuss it any longer. None of the players took any interest in to-day's game.

The score by innings was as follows:
Highlanders.....0 0 0 4 4 2 0 0 6
Boston.....0 1 0 1 0 0 2 0 4
